~~SECRET//NOFORN - HANDLE VIA SKEET CHANNELS ONLY~~PROJECT SUN STREAK (U)WARNING NOTICE: INTELLIGENCE SOURCES AND METHODS INVOLVED

PROJECT NUMBER: 8815

SESSION NUMBER: 2

DATE OF SESSION: 3 OCT 88

DATE OF REPORT: 6 OCT 88

START: 1320

END: 1515

METHODOLOGY: CRV

VIEWER IDENTIFIER: 003

1. (S/NF/SK) MISSION: Identify and provide a description of the mission and origin of "Object B".
- Mission should be - what is the object?

2. (S/NF/SK) VIEWER TASKING: As in the two previous sessions, coordinates only.

3. (S/NF/SK) COMMENTS: Unlike other sessions, the monitor has no idea--no feel--for what is going on here, and can offer no explanation for the jumble of (disconnected) perceptions associated with this target. Does 003 have site contact? Did we slip off of the target? Are we dealing with something abstract (like a 'UFO')? Are the monitor's preconceived notions or analyses overlaying (psychically) the intelligence agenda?

4. (S/NF/SK) EVALUATION: []

Session started out with strong AOL of boat marina like at Annapolis, and of a boat moored alongside a pier. Coordinates retaken, providing concept of an area suggestive of industrial and urban--many structures of differing heights jumbled together; associated with terrain undulations as if built in a hilly area. Site is definitely not-US. There is a sense that there is one particular person here of interest. He seems to be male, stocky, tanned of dark complected, with a bushy mustache. Reminds me of Alex Tannous in appearance. Person is physically within the limits of the site, and seems to be the same as everyone else (i.e., a citizen or natural inhabitant) but has other goals and agendas from the normal people here. In a way, he feels himself as different from the others in some way--attitudinally or philosophically or motivationally or intellectually, or all of the above. In the past, this person has left the place where he lives "like" he's going abroad to school to later return and work and develop his own place in the society. It's as if he goes from a 3d world country to the US for a course of study to take back learning techniques and ideas and so forth to his country to develop things. There is a sense of violence involved with the school, suggesting the idea of terrorist training camp. This person is perceived as walking around observing things, willing to learn, feeling a little bit overwhelmed. The teaching is confrontive, authoritarian in presentation. Much like the attitude with which a special ops training course is conducted. Lots of hands-on sort of training, with practical exercises involving materials and gadgets/tools/equipment. Reminds me in some ways of a specialized art school, but more technically involved and "practically" applicable. To get in you have to know someone, have past experience, and show aptitude, with the correct ideology and mindset. Doesn't cost. Prestige involved. Fraternity sense about it--elitism. But guarantees necessary--it's like they have to have some sort of "strings" attached to protect their investment, before they feel confident in letting you come. They have a lot invested, and a lot to lose and want some sort of guarantee of return and confidentiality. Operation is shadowy, covert, non-public. To get in you make private inquiries or are approached by "talent scouts". Either way no direct contact at first, then contacted by "agents," then wheels are cautiously set in motion. The idea of "school" is not a precise description. It is a little more nebulous--more decentralized, without a concentrated "campus" area. A building here and there, unidentified as connected, scattered throughout an urban area. On-site exercises are involved, some even having real-life applications and results (like SF confidence targets). It's like it's all here and normal life goes on all around it totally oblivious to its existence. There's a sense of extra-legality about it, and international--it is not sponsored by any government or official agency. AOL followed of making contact with this organization in a scuzzy, slum-like public place (i.e., bar, or whatever). Organization seems to be strict, exacting, amoral (as opposed to immoral), goal-oriented, disciplined, and very smart. They know what they want and can be very exacting of other and themselves in attaining their objectives. See themselves as being above other considerations, and if necessary can rationalize away anything they do. Tend to view other people as objects and resources or obstacles without the "weakness" of viewing them as individuals. Sense of this organization having been around for a long time in one form or another--it's like it has evolved or changed hands over time. Most recent goal has been to prepare people for places in a loose, shadowy organization that is fluid and amorphous and relatively informal except where security of success of the organization and operations are threatened, then no mercy for mistakes made.

Organizational goals seems to be to benefit itself materially, particularly the people in control, but it is recognized that the "foot soldiers" must be well rewarded to keep the system working. It's "like" a cancer that appropriates all the nutrients meant for the healthy cells and body functions for itself. Involves not just material rewards but power and perceived power as well. [Note: Entire session was conducted under strong overlay of drug or terrorist organization.]

Such idea of "School" hot-penia - it's a little more nebulous - more decentralised, not a concentrated "campus" area. A bldg here + there; many activities begin in bldg at all -
 on-site exercises; some even have real applications - training, but with real-life result. It's like it's here,
 + normal life is going on around it, but it's camouflaged
 so normal people don't know it's there.
